Other Steps Bring Out Importance of Attention to Rural Problems.

Yesterday marked the beginning of active work in the campaign inaugurated some weeks ago by the organization of a Rural Club for the purpose of improving rural teaching conditions in the East Central district.

In this movement, to get the rural teachers of the entire district together for co-operation and definite work toward bettering conditions, East Central is first, being the only school in the state at present to have a students organization of this

The Rural Club now has an organization of two hundred and fifty members and is growing rapidly. It is composed of those who teach in rural districts and small villages.

CHAPTER L-Aline Lavergne owns CHAPTER L.—Aline Lavergne owns Cypremort, a small plantation in the Louistana bayous. She leaves the management to John Philbrick, an old retainer and faithful, but not a good business man, as Ah Lee, the Manchu, who is trying to help Aline, explains to the Mysterious John Solomon.
Aline's uncle David Macarty and his son, Felix, under pretense of looking after her interests, plot to get control of the plantation. of the plantation.

CHAPTER II .- One of their schemes is to dam the bayou and thus dry up her rice fields. Then they try to get rid of Philbrick. Aline suspects the Macartys and consults Jack Fortier, a young lawyer, who takes her case.

CHAPTER V .- The Macartys drop open hostilities and invite Fortier and Aline to go on their yacht, the Watersprite, to inspect the plantation. Solo-mon has secured the job of steward on the yacht - Just before they sail Aline gets a telegram from Philbrick saying that he is going away for a while and has left the plantation in charge of Captain Wrexham.

CHAPTER VI .- Solomon foils an attempt to steal Fortier's papers. An outlaw named Gros Michel is killed on the yacht and Thompson, the mate, is held for murder, chiefly through the evidence of Solomon, who later con-fesses to Fortier that he killed the man, and gives Fortier the Lavergne papers, which Thompson had stolen from the lawyer.

"Well, sir, she pops out around the point of an island, not two miles away. We turned tail, I can tell you! She put two shots over us and two more in the water. By that time the old girl was walkin' away from her with the salls wet down and bone in her teeth -and we went on walkin', that's all! She'll do her fifteen if all's right."

Macarty nodded at this confidence. He fell to staring into the fire embers. "Remarkable craft," he said after bit. "By the way, I don't suppose

There was a little silence. Macarty was studying this man, so ready to break the law. Presently he spoke

"So old Philbrick got a hint and skipped out, eh? Let him go-he can't do much hurt from the brakes. Perhaps you know that my cousin owns this place?"

"Heard something about it," said Wrexham calmly.

"Very good. Since Philbrick is gone. I'll move in here until she returns from New Orleans. The place should be taken care of."

Wrexham chuckled in his beard. "What about me?" he said dryly. "You?" surprise lightened in the eyes of Macarty. "Why, you-" "Philbrick put the place in my care," explained Wrexham pleasantly. "Legal enough, I guess. Anyhow, I'm here."

Macarty was silent for a long moment; these words, pleasantly spoken, yet held a very strong significance. Captain Wrexham smoked and stared at the fire, ignoring the dark gaze that was fastened upon him.

"See here!" said Macarty suddenly, a stir of anger in his tone. "What's your game?"

Wrexham looked at him reflectively. "Well, to tell the truth, I don't know! Wish I did. I might load the schooner with some of the pickings around here, and go away. I've been thinkin' of it, for a fact."

"What's your price?" queried Macarty bluntly.

Wrexham glanced up, met the smoldering eyes, held them with a level

"Did you ever see a man playin' straight because he was tired o' makin' crooked money?"

This oblique answer held Fellx Macarty thoughtim for a moment. It was hard for him to understand the skipper. Gradually he had sensed antagonism here-a stone wall, hidden, yet powerful, through which he could find no opening.

Macarty rose and shook his cigar ashes into the fire. As he did so, he asked a question-asked it with elaborate carelessness.

"Ever hear of the Gemini? Or the Sea-moon?"

"Eh?" Wrexham frowned. "You mean a lunar rainbow? I've seen 'em often, off New Caledonia."

Another silence. Wrexham studied that question in his mind-he could not fathom it. Felix Macarty smiled thinly, and rose to his feet.

"I suppose, if you're in charge here, that you know the situation? Philbrick told you about the dam and all?" Wrexham rose also, and assented. nilbrick explained all that. Why?

He stood on the landing, while the black men hastened to get the boats and launches out to where the water would still float them. The wharf was already high and dry. Out midstream in the bayou appeared a launch, floating with the slow current. Captain Wrexham chewed on his eigar and eyed this boat in malignant fury.

The boat carried two men. In the bow stood Felix Macarty, watching the work ashore. At the sudden subsidence of the water, at the grounding of the schooner and Wrexham's storm of curses, Macarty had broken into a stinging the seaman like a whip.

ARE WE LAW BREAKERS?

Within less than thirty days in this county three men were shot down and another narrowly escaped with his life. While this is unusual here, a homicide in Oklahoma is not unusual. In fact, crime of all kinds is so common in the United States that we have become almost hardened to the idea, and take crime often as a matter of course.

We think we are the chosen people of the earth, and boast of our greatness in many respects. In invention, in material progress and in most ways of living we are far in advance of the other nations of the globe, but in the treatment of our fellow man, we are far behind other people.

We learn from a list of figures compiled by C. P. Connolly in McClure's Magazine that in 1916 London had nine premediated murders, while Chicago with one-third as many people had nearly twelve times as many murders. In fact, Chicago that year had more murders than all of England and Wales combined. New York city has around six times as many homicides as London year after year.

The United States holds the world's record for lynching, while England, Scotland, Ireland and all the British possessions have not had a lynching in 75 years. As lynchings result from other crimes, this simply stacks up the figures.

The list might go on and on. Automobile theft is appalling. "In the year 1919, there were 5,527 automobiles stolen in the city of New York, 4,316 in Chicago, 3,482 in Detroit, 1,244 in St. Louis, 2,327 in Cleveland, 986 in Buffalo, 290 in London and 10 in Liverpool."

What are causes and the remedy? Chief Justice Taft said some years ago:

"It is not too much to say that the administration of criminal law in this country is a disgrace to our civilization and that the prevalence of crime and fraud, which here is greatly in excess of that in European countries, is due largely to the failure of the law and its administration to bring criminals to justice."

It is pointed out by the writer of the article that in twenty years, there were 131,940 murders in this country while and instructive paper was read be- ing the presentation of its proonly a little more than one percent of the murderers were convicted.

These are matters of grave concern. It is possible that we son, director of postar services of Christian gathering in China to the are growing to be a nation of sentimentalists and let hardened criminals ply their trade with little chance for conviction or serving out the term if convicted?

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla, July 25 -Vacationists were warned today by the state health department to avoid fly-breeding places in their annual outdoor outings, take care that nothing but pure, good water is selected and as a further precaution against typhoid fever, to inoculate the "entire family" with anti-typhoid vaccine.

Under another heading the department describes for the benefit of the outdoor enthusiasts, the poison ivy plant, which, it says, is very likely to infest the otherwise enticing camp and picnic sites. The treatment also is prescribed.

"Poison ivey." says the report, is the most common poisonous plant in Oklahoma. It is a climbing or trailing shrub which grows in abundance along the ground. On fences and trees. It sometimes becomes strong enough to grow into small tree itself.

"It is most often confused with the common woodbine or Virginia creeper, but can easily be distinguished if persons will remember that the ivy has only three leaves
